"Our unique organizational culture is the kind that other organizations are working very hard to create. BC Housing attracts people who genuinely care about others."

Carol U Human Resources Advisor

As part of my personal growth plan at BC Housing, I've moved recently into Human Resources. It was only once I got into HR and met other practitioners and students from across the Lower Mainland, that I realized just how different it is here. During discussions about employer "best practices," I shared BC Housing examples which impressed my classmates and enticed many to approach me after class for more information.

Like my colleagues, I give it my all when I'm at work - something's that only possible when your personal values and those of the organization are aligned.
